

Amira Jarmakani: EWIC Online Editor

Amira Jarmakani is an Associate Professor of Women's Studies at Georgia State University. She is the author of Imagining Arab Womanhood: The Cultural Mythology of Veils, Harems, and Belly Dancers in the U.S. (New York: Palgrave Macmillan 2008), which won the NWSA Gloria Anzaldúa 2008 book prize. She works in the fields of Women's and Gender Studies, Arab American Studies, and Cultural Studies, and she is currently at work on a project about the popularity of the "sheikh" hero in mass-market romance novels, tentatively titled "'To Catch a Sheik' in the War on Terror: Reading the Desert Romance."