ABOUT

About the Training to Transformative Gender Research Program
The Training to Transformative Gender Research Program has created a mentoring relationship between distinguished professors and researchers and junior faculty and Ph.D. students in universities in the Arab region in order that their research might be a catalyst for transformative developments in their communities. Participants attend a series of four seminars over the course of two years. During this time, with the guidance of their mentors, they gather and analyze their data, hone their writing and research, and produce a finished piece for publication. The final seminar, the culmination of participants’ efforts, will be a workshop for participants to finalize their projects for publication.

Overview

In advance of the seminar, participants will be asked to read key documents on Dr. Suad Joseph’s website on proposal writing http://sjoseph.ucdavis.edu. The key documents are available in Arabic and English. The workshop includes intensive lectures which presents all the components of a research proposal in condensed form on the first day of the seminar. The second and third days will have lectures on doing research on gender violence in the Arab region by the trainers (Drs. Zeina Zaatari, Lena Meari, and Nadine Naber). Participants will work in “writing groups” on assignments. Each writing group will identify a team leader to coordinate their schedules. Each participant is required to make a presentation every day to the writing group and share assignments for feedback. On the last day, each participant is required to make a presentation of their proposal to the whole seminar. The following six months, participants will work with assigned mentors to complete a fundable research proposal on their topic of research related to gender violence in the Arab region. Those who successfully complete their proposals will be funded for a pilot project to carry out the research under the mentorship of one of the trainers. The second seminar will be in the Fall 2018. The third and fourth seminars will be in 2019. In the two years, the researchers will complete a research proposal, data gathering, data analysis, and writing their report/article. Participants must make a 2-year commitment.
